During a Passover season many years ago while living in a tipi in the mountains of North Idaho, Rebekah learned how to make matzah. Since then, she has become a matzah master. She has leaned on creativity and resourcefulness in order to make matzah in the variety of situations she and her family have endured. She has perfected the art of making this ancient flatbread and how to serve it to others. Now her tradition can be yours.

The Mastery of Matzah is not just another cookbook. It is an amazing teaching tool with scripture, study guides, and heartfelt explanations as to why we are to eat unleavened bread. The recipes are simple and easy to follow with colorful illustrations. This is a must have during the Passover season and all year long.
